Latin at the High School

In Saturday's STAR appeared a communication which was for two reasons quite striking-it was well and forcibly written, but in the second place

the writer of that article is decidedly "off the track" of the best thought and experience of a half ham, of North Carolina, and so many others, whose names are household words either in the entire country or at least in the States of their residence, that the mention of them would fill all of to-day's STAR. Nothing, in my opinion—an opinion based upon the experience of over tweive years in the class-room—can give the student a clearer idea, a better conception, of the difficult constructions and the idioms of Latin than to have him render into Latin an English sentence, abounding in these constructions, and thus, in writing, the peculiarities become familiar with them. I may explain to the student a dozen times the intricacles of "the indirect discourse," or of "the conditional sentence," but he is often "in tenebris" in regard to it; one carefully-composed English sentence, however, embracing the pecu-

To the Editor of THE EVENING STAR:

Bridgeport, Ohio, attended the services yesterday morning at the First Presbyterian church. Rev. Dr. Sunderland preached from Psalms 43, 17, and his theme was the position and influence of the church in the world.

The pulpit of the Unitarian church was occupied yesterday by Rev. Jos. May, of Philadelphia, whose subject was the "Life's Journey." The preacher emphasized the truth that the best of life was to prepare for the eternity beyond. The subject of Rev. Dr. Naylor's sermon last evening at the Hamline Methodist church was "Unconscious Influence." McKendree church was opened yesterday for the first time since the interior improvements, costing $2,000, have been made. The services had special reference to this event. In the morning the sermon was delivered by the pastor, Rev. C. Herbert Richardson. Special services for the Sunday school were held and addresses were made by Rev. Mr. Richardson, R. V. Belt, the superintendent, and B. F. Fuiler. In the evening the sermon was delivered by Rev. Dr. Hingeley, of Ohio.

They Admitted Taking the Money.—Two young men, Was. Zypprecht and Chas. Baker, were in the Police Court this morning charged with the grand larceny of $38 from Wm. Hanbach, No. 1205 Wylie street northeast. Mr. Hanbach testified to the loss of his money, which was stolen from a trunk in his house. He said he saw the defendants near his back gate the day the robbery was committed. Detective Raff testified to the arrest of Zypprecht, who said that he went to the house with Baker, who took the money and gave him a portion of it. He said he spent the money going to the theater and purchasing a hat for his girl. Detective Horne testified to the arrest of Baker, who admitted taking the money, and said he was drunk at the time. The case was sent to the grand jury; bonds $300.

The Protection of City Trees.—This morning, in the Police Court, John Carter, colored, was charged with permitting his horse to eat the bark from a tree. Judge Sneil said that thousands of shade trees had been set out at great expense to the city and they must be protected. No longer ago than last week he noticed several beautiful trees on Massachusetts avenue which had been greatily damaged by being cut with a hatchet.

NDER DATE OF NOVEMBER 13, 1887, FROM Chilicothe, Ohio, a lady, formerly of this city, writes: "It is now a year since I commenced using Crystal Discovery. I have moved since then to this place. My hair at that time was in a bad way, falling with fearful rapidity: indeed, I feared entire baldness. With many miscivings I then bought the first bottle of Crystal Discovery, but to my great delight it worked wonders. Shortly after my hair stopped falling, and now I have an abundance again and in good condition, not a gray hair to be seen."

This certainly is excellent testimony, and deserves publication.

the writer of that article is decidedly "off the track" of the best thought and experience of a half century. I refer to the article entitled "'Keekaro' at the High School," In the strictures upon the "rushing" inethod pursued in that school he may be right. I know nothing of that matter. In his conclusion that such a method of teaching is deleterious to a thorough study and a sound acquisition of Latin or of any other subject I heartily agree with "Parent." But in his diatribe against the practice of turning English into Latin, and in his sharp criticism of the Roman method of pronunciation, I must take issue with him.

In one part of a sentence he speaks (and most properly) of the great advantage to be derived from the careful study of a sentence of Cwarr; in the other he says "the translation of English sentences into Latin is absolutely without benefit whatever." Now, the leading thinkers and the best practical workers among Latin teachers in this country and in all civilized countries have, for fifty years and more, given their unqualified approval to the practice under discussion. They have given expression to their approval by making books for use as English-Latin writers, by having English sentences turned into Latin in their classes, and by making this one of the features of their instruction.

The celebrated Dr. Arnold, of Rugby—a name reverenced the world over by all who love the true man, the faithful teacher and the careful ploneer into new and rich fields of instruction and science—advocated in every way, by precept and by practice, the method of which I write, saying again and again that there could be no practice more conductive to a good understanding of the Latin language than that of rendering English sentences into Latin. Among the advocates of this practice in the study of both Latin and Greek may be named Goodwin, of Harvard; Gildersleeve, of the Johns Hopkins; Hadley, the lamented leader of the faculty of Yale; Allen Greenough, of Harvard; Peters, of the University of Virginia; Morris,

THANKSGIVING IS COMING.

good things of life are made all the more attractive by the appointments of the Table, and among these SILVERWARE stands first in Beauty and Usefulness. The business in this line of goods has, for the past ten elry trade. The modern idea of close buying, quick sales, and small profits, has been successful in this line, as in others. We keep only Standard Goods, of well known makers, and guarantee every piece sold. These firms have been manufacturers of Silverware for years, and have never yet put a poor article on the
